Winners Announced While Crowd
Cheers—Medals Awarded by Gen. Weaver.

In the face of greater competition than ever before, Eastern High School yesterday afternoon, by winning the first two honors in the annual competitive drill of the high school cadets, performed a feat never before equaled in the history of the high school cadets. Company F, Eastern's original company, won first honors, while Company G, added this year, won second place, being second to Company F by only ninety-nine hundredths of 1 per cent. Company D of the McKinley Manual Training School was awarded third honors.

Not only was the competition made particularly keen this year by the number of companies taking part—eighteen, as against twelve last year—but the official rating of the judges also attested to the closeness of the contest. The three highest companies received these marks:

Company F, Eastern, 94.25.

Company G, Eastern, 92.26.

Company D, McKinley, 91.42.

All Companies in Review.

The large number of cadets taking part in the drill this year crowded the field of the American League ball park, where the competition took place, when all of the companies assembled to take part in the review. This preceded the announcement of the winners.

Finally, when it seemed that the nervous strain would be nearing its breaking point, the judges marched onto the field, accompanied by Gen. E. M. Weaver, U. S. A., who was to make the presentation of medals to the schools and officers who were to take part in the exercises.

One by one the three winners were announced, the announcement of each bringing forth loud cheering and waving of banners in stanzas—that is, from the supporters of the respective companies.

In the party standing on the field to greet the drill winners were Gen. Weaver, Henry P. Blair, president of the board of education; P. T. Morgan, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Thomas Grant, secretary of that organization; Ernest L. Thurston, superintendent of schools; Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent directly in charge of military affairs and "major domo" of the occasion; James P. Oyster, former president of the board of education; John B. Larner, William T. Gallaher, Mrs. Edith Kingman Koke, members of the board of education, and Maj. Wallace A. McCathran, N. G. D. C., commandant of the cadets.

Gen. Weaver Praises Winners.

Gen. Weaver, in presenting the flag to Capt. William E. Barkman of Company F, congratulated him and his company in the highest terms, referring to the drill as a "brilliant competition." He called attention to the fact that neither the captain nor any one man could win the drill for a company but that it required "teamwork." "And in presenting this banner to you I hope that the best company may again win it next year," concluded Gen. Weaver. He then pinned on Capt. Barkman the Allison Naylor medal, experiencing a little difficulty, however, as the winning captain already had his breast covered with marksmanship and other cadet medals.

Mr. Morgan then presented to Capt. Barkman a replica of the Allison Naylor medal on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. The replica Capt. Barkman is entitled to keep, but the original, worth $1,200 or more, has to be returned to the schools for use next year. In making the presentation Mr. Morgan spoke highly of the spirit shown in the drill. "I hope that you always will be able to show this spirit and this seal in all walks of life," he said.

Each of the three winning companies was brought forward and presented, each man in turn receiving a ribbon, colored according to the position won. Red denoted first place, purple second place and white third place.

Following the drill, Lieut. F. S. Skinner, chairman of the judges, spoke highly of the efficiency of the companies. "I must admit that I was somewhat surprised by the drill they made," he said. "They certainly did well."

Officers Carried on Men's Shoulders.

As soon as the cadets were dismissed the men of Companies F and G hoisted their officers on their shoulders, carrying them out of the ball park, down 7th street and along Pennsylvania avenue in the same manner, until the school was reached. Here a celebration was held.

One slight accident occurred to mar the drill yesterday. Sergeant David L. Sprinkman of Company C, McKinley Manual Training School, in taking the bayonet off his gun accidentally cut his face. The wound was not serious, but the sight of blood caused considerable excitement among a number of the feminine spectators. Dr. J. D. Eggleston treated the young man and the flow of blood was soon stopped.

In honor of the double winning Eastern celebrated last night. Members of the faculty, former cadet officers and men were present. Talks were made by the principal of the school, Dr. William S. Small, Capt. Van Schaick, U. S. A., Claus J. Schwartz, a member of the faculty; Wallace Yater, former colonel of cadets; several former captains, including Bruce Handy, Herbert Babcock and Fred Decker. Present officers of the companies also spoke. The last time Eastern won was in 1905, under the leadership of Capt. Harmon Linthicum.

The rosters of the three winning companies follow:

BUSINESS HIGH CADETS

HOLD SUPPER AND DANCE

Henry P. Blair, President of Board of Education, Principal Speaker.

Others Also Speak.

At Business High School last night the annual cadet supper was held, followed by an informal dance. Allan Davis, principal of the school, presided during the supper and introduced the speakers.

Henry P. Blair, president of the board of education, made the principal address, after which he left to visit the other schools. Mr. Blair brought forth the fact that it was always the worst man in a company who caused it to win or lose. "The credit for winning the drill by Company F of Eastern High School," he said, "goes to the last man in the rear rank, for no matter how well the rest of the men in it might have drilled, it was in his power to cause their efforts to go for nothing."

Fred C. Connor, captain of the winning Company E of 1914, spoke, as did James C. Dulin, who first brought the trophy to Business with Company E in 1909. Karl G. Wassmann, major of the 2d Battalion of the 2d Regiment, and

BRIG. GEN. E. M. WEAVER, U. S. A., PRESENTING THE FLAG TO CAPT. WILLIAM E. BARKMAN OF THE VICTORIOUS COMPANY.

McCathran, N. G. D. C., commandant of cadets; Dr. William S. Small, principal of the school; Col. J. H. Fellows of the cadets, former Col. The Hand of Death
Still Controls
Woodford's

JUST when Arthur McHugh thought he had successfully braved ghosts of Bertram Woodford, the power of the grave made itself definitely and horribly felt. Woodford dead forty years, as jealous as Woodford alive, would not permit any man to play his part.

The actor taking his place at the revival of his great success was stricken down in the very act of pronouncing the same lines which proved fatal to his great predecessor.
